WELCOME TO FENWAY PARK

Jean R. Yawkey

Haywood C. Sullivan

Edward G. LeRoux, Jr.

We hope you have an enjoyable visit to Fenway Park. Since 1912 it has been one of baseball's great landmarks and has developed a rich tradition.

Our refurbishing projects are continuing. Hopefully you will not be inconvenienced while we strive to add further improvements to our ballpark.

Among current improvements are expanded facilities for wheelchair fans and new lighting for the playing field. Concession stands and rest rooms have also undergone overhauling.

Although there have been cosmetic changes at Fenway Park, the playing field is virtually the same today as it was over 40 years ago. The famous "Green Monster" wall, the intriguing angles and corners around the outfield and the closeness of the crowd to the action are reasons why it is such a captivating place to watch baseball.

The Boston entry in the American League's inception in 1901 was known as the Pilgrims and played its games at the Huntington Avenue grounds where Northeastern U. now stands. In 1907 the Red Sox nickname was adopted and in 1912 Fenway Park opened for the first time.

The late Tom Yawkey put Fenway through a reconstruction phase during his first year of ownership in 1934 and then put the bullpens in right field after the 1939 season. Prior to the 1976 season a new left field wall was built, the centerfield message board was installed and padding was added to the outfield walls as a safety measure for outfielders.

For 83 years Boston has been one of the cornerstone franchises of the American League. Many great players have performed here and some of baseball's most dramatic moments were seen here.

During the last 16 years over 28 million fans have attended games in Fenway Park. Over that span the Red Sox have been the only major league team to have a winning record every single season.

The 1982 edition, capably managed by Ralph Houk, was in either first or second place from April 23 through September 3 and remained in the Eastern Division race until the last week of September.

The diagram on page 16A shows the location of all Fenway Park facilities and the maps on page 50 show the various methods and routes leading here. We urge you to use the public transportation facilities as often as possible to come to the ballpark.

Above all, the Red Sox management thanks Red Sox fans throughout New England for their tremendous support over the years.

THE MANAGER

RALPH GEORGE (RALPH) HOUK #35

Age: 63, Turns 64 Aug. 9; Born: August 9, 1919, Lawrence, Kan. Ht.: 5-11; Wt.: 190 lbs. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Pompano Beach, Fla. Married Bette Porter. Children: Donna 11/22/41, Richard 2/28/43, Robert 8/24/49.

The Red Sox remained in the 1982 Eastern Div. race until the last week and finished third with an 89-73 record. Houk's successful handling of the bullpen was a prime reason the team was first or second Apr. 23 thru Sept. 3. The club responded to Houk's never-say-die attitude and came from behind to win 45 games, including 14 from the 7th inning on. In Dec. 1981 the Red Sox extended Houk's contract through 1984 at a substantial increase in salary.

On Oct. 27, 1980 Houk was named the 35th manager of the Red Sox, ending a two-year retirement. Ralph previously managed 16 years in the A.L. with the Yankees and Tigers. In addition to being a winning manager (1455-1371 .515) he is also credited with the ability to develop young players. Houk succeeded Casey Stengel as Yankee manager in 1961 and directed N.Y. to three straight pennants and two World Championships (1961-62). Those feats resulted in such honors as Major League Manager of the Year by The Sporting News in 1961 and managing the A.L. All Star team in 1962-63. He spent two years as Yankee Vice-Pres. and Gen. Manager before moving back as manager May 7, 1966 replacing Johnny Keane. He was named A.L. Manager of the Year in 1970.

Ralph left N.Y. after 1973 to become manager of the Tigers for the next five years. He announced his retirement after guiding the young Tigers to an 86-76 record in 1978 and spent the next two years in Pompano Beach. Houk is first in point of service as a manager in the major leagues.

Houk played in the Yankee organization as a catcher, 1939-54, with four years (1942-45) out for military duty with the Rangers of the 9th Armored Div. in Europe in WW II. He rose from private to major, saw action at Bastogne and The Bulge and was awarded the Silver Star, Purple Heart and Bronze Star.

THE COACHES

JOHN MICHAEL (JOHNNY) PESKY #6

Age: 63, Turns 64 Sept. 27; Born: September 27, 1919, Portland, Ore. Ht.: 5-9; Wt.: 170 lbs. Brown eyes, Brown hair. Bats: Left; Throws: Right. Home: Swampscott, Mass. Married Ruth Hickey. Children: David 12/19/52.

Johnny has been associated with the Red Sox for close to 40 years in almost every phase of the game, as a player, coach, manager, radio-TV announcer and advertising salesman. He's still one of the most popular members of the Red Sox and makes many off-season appearances on the banquet circuit. In Jan. 1982 the Boston Baseball Writers honored him with their "Good Guy" award. He was the first base coach for five years and then moved to a dugout role assisting the manager in 1980 while continuing to be the team's hitting instructor.

Johnny was an outstanding shortstop, third baseman and all-around hitter. He holds the Red Sox records for most hits by a rookie (205) and most singles in a season (172) and hit over 300 six times in his major league career. He was the first Red Sox player to have three 200-hit years (Jim Rice is the 2nd). After 10 years with Boston, he coached under Red Sox managers in Detroit and Washington, Pesky coached under Ralph Houk in Denver in 1955 and managed in the Detroit farm system from 1956 through 1960. In the mid-1960's he was a coach for the Pirates and a manager in their system before joining the Red Sox broadcast crew in 1969. He spent six years as part of the radio and television team. He also managed Seattle for the Red Sox in 1961-62 before moving up to the parent Boston team in 1963-64. He's tied for the M.L. record of leading a league in hits 3 straight years.

It's a Hit!

WALTER JOHN (WALT) HRINIAK
#33

Age: 39, Turns 40 May 22; Born: May 22, 1943, Natick, Mass. Ht.: 5-11; Wt.: 178 lbs. Green eyes, Blond hair. Bats: Left, Throws: Right. Home: Natick, Mass.

This is Hriniaik's seventh year with the Red Sox. In addition to his bullpen coaching duties he works on hitting techniques with several of the Sox and has won acclaim for his methods. He's recognized as one of the best baiting practice pitchers in the game and is a keen student of overall strategy.

Before joining the Red Sox in 1977 Hriniaik put in 16 years as a player, coach and minor league manager. He managed Montreal's rookie team at Lethbridge, Alb., Can. in the Pioneer League in 1976 after starting the year as a coach with Denver. In 1974-75 he was first base coach with the Expos, following two years as manager of their Jamestown team in the NYP League.

Hriniaik signed a reported $50,000 contract with the Milwaukee Braves in 1961 after an outstanding career at Natick, Mass. H.S. He was an All Scholastic choice as a shortstop, football quarterback and hockey center. His 13-year pro playing career included two years with the Braves and Padres as a catcher in 1968-69.

EDWARD FRED JOSEPH (EDDIE)
YOST #36

Age: 56; Born: October 13, 1926, Brooklyn, N.Y. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 180 lbs. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Wellesley, Mass. Married Pat Healy. Children: Felita 1/13/62, Michael 11/12/63, Alexis 5/3/65.

Eddie is regarded as one of the best third base coaches in baseball. Quick thinking and thorough knowledge of the opposition's strengths and weaknesses are necessary ingredients for a successful third base coach, and Yost has always demonstrated those attributes. Eddie is in his seventh year at that spot for the Red Sox after doing likewise for the Mets, 1969-76 and Washington Senators, 1963-67. He was with the Mets in the 1969 and 1973 World Series.

"The Walking Man," as he was known during his 17-year major league career, was an outstanding third baseman and leadoff hitter. Came from the campus of New York U. to the Senators in 1944. Led the A.L. 6 times in BB, had over 100 BB 8 times, scored over 100 runs 5 times and twice led the A.L. in fielding. Still holds the A.L. record of 28 HR as leadoff batter.

He was traded from Washington to Detroit in Dec. of 1958 and was selected by the Angels in baseball's first expansion draft, Dec. 14, 1960. When Yost retired after the 1962 season he held the major league record for most games at third base (2,008) and the A.L. marks for putouts (2,356), assists (3,659) and chances (6,015). He was selected for the A.L. All Star team in 1952 but did not play. He has a Master's Degree in Physical Education from N.Y.U. and is a member of their Hall of Fame. On Nov. 1, 1981 he was inducted into the Washington, D.C. Hall of Stars and his portrait was hung in D.C. Stadium.

ALBERT LEE (LEE, STINGER)
STANGE #34

Age: 46; Born: October 27, 1936, Chicago, Ill. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 170 lbs. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Fountain Valley, Calif. Married June. Children: Tim 9/3/64, Jim 3/21/67, Jana 5/15/68, Jennifer 9/25/66, Christopher 11/1/67.

Stange was named pitching coach in Nov. 1980 after a six-year absence from the Red Sox major league staff. He rejoined the Sox in 1980 as a minor league pitching instructor on the Triple A and Double A levels and served as a West Coast scout.

"Stinger" ended a 10-year major league career in 1970 and was the Red Sox minor league pitching coach in 1971 before moving up to the club's major league staff in 1972-74. He held the same position with the Twins in 1975 and then joined the Oakland organization in 1976 as a minor league instructor. He was the A's pitching coach 1977-79.

Stange had a 62-61 major league record with the Twins, Indians, Red Sox and White Sox. He came to Boston 6/2/66 from the Indians with pitcher Don McMahon for Dick Radatz. He was 8-10 with a 2.77 ERA (best on the team) during the 1967 pennant-winning season and the Sox best reliever in 1968 with 5 wins and 11 saves in 50 games. On 6/29/70 he was sold to the White Sox. "Stinger" was All State in baseball and All Chicago in basketball at Proviso Township H.S. He was also a football QB and teammate of ex-NFL star Ray Nitschke, and went to Drake U. on a football scholarship. On 9/2/64 he tied the M.L. record of 4 strikeouts in one inning for Cleveland.

TOMMY (TOMMY) HARPER
#32

Age: 42; Born: October 14, 1940, Oak-Grove, La. Ht.: 5-9; Wt.: 160 lbs. Brown eyes, Black hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Stoughton, Mass. Married Bonnie Jean Williams.

Harper is in his fourth year as the club's first base coach and base-running instructor. He spent the 1979 season in the Red Sox public relations office before joining the coaching staff. Tommy had a 15-year major league career with Cincinnati, Cleveland, the Seattle Pilots, Milwaukee, the Red Sox, California, Oakland and Baltimore and then was a scout and minor league coach for the Yankees.

He started his career with the Reds at the end of the 1962 season and finished with the Orioles in 1976. In 1810 games Harper hit .257 with 146 home runs and 408 stolen bases. In 1970 he hit 31 home runs and stole 38 bases for Milwaukee, a feat accomplished by Bobby Bonds, Willie Mays, Henry Aaron and Ken Williams. He hit 6 homers that year as leadoff batter, to tie for the A.L. record with Eddie Joost (1948), Eddie Yost (1959), Bert Campaneris (1970) and Brian Downing (1982). In 1965 he led the N.L. in runs (126) for the Reds and in 1969 he led the A.L. with 73 stolen bases for the Pilots. He played for the Red Sox in 1972-74 and was the team's MVP in 1973 when he led the A.L. with a club-record 54 SB's, scored 92 runs and hit 17 homers.

Harper starred in three sports at Encinal H.S. and Santa Rosa College and hit .507 at San Francisco State before signing with the Reds. He was the MVP of the Three-I League in 1961 and played 1B-2B-3B-OF in the majors.

JERRY REMY

by Tom Shea

At 5-foot-9, 165-pounds, Jerry Remy is the Boston Red Sox "little big man."

"Jerry is an asset on and off the field," said Red Sox manager Ralph Houk. "He is an outstanding clutch hitter — especially in the eighth and ninth innings — and his great competitiveness rubs off on the younger players."

The 30-year-old second baseman is in his sixth season with the Red Sox. Carl Yastrzemski, Dwight Evans, Jim Rice and Bob Stanley are the only present Red Sox with more continuous service with the team.

"This is my ninth year in the big leagues (the first three were with the California Angels) and I can't believe that that much time has crept by. I don't feel any different than I did when I first came up except I am more confident. I now know what I can and can't do."

He also believes the best is yet to come.

"It used to be 30 was a no-no age in baseball," recalled Remy, who signed a five-year contract with the Sox after the 1981 season.

"One bad year and people started thinking you were washed up. Now, with so many players working out year-round, it's not rare to see players having good seasons at 38. People say that between 28 and 32 is a player's prime, so right now I'm in the midst of my prime."

Remy is so "old" that his double play partner, shortstop Glenn Hoffman, remembers going to Anaheim Stadium to watch Remy play as a rookie with the Angels in 1975.

"I liked him as a player," said Hoffman, 25, an Angels fan as a youth. "I really admired his hustle. The Angels were a small team that year with guys like Mickey Rivers and Dave Collins. Jerry seemed smaller, but he also seemed to try harder than anyone else, also."

Remy claims his size has never been a deterrent in his career.

"As a matter of fact, I consider my size an asset. I wasn't blessed with great talent, so the game was never easy for me. I have to work at it — whether it's in infield practice or during the off season working on the Nautilus machines.

"I couldn't hit home runs so I tried to make myself a scrappy, hustling-type player."

An example of his scrappy, hustling-type style — Remy beat out 19 bunt singles last year and successfully sacrificed 18 of 21 in-play attempts. He also swiped 16 bases.

As far as the numbers in the box scores and on the back of baseball cards, Remy stacks up well.

He has over 1,000 career hits, twice has hit over .300 and owns a .276 lifetime batting average. He also reached 200 career stolen bases this year.

Remy's brand of baseball has earned him respect. Red Sox coach Johnny Pesky compares Remy to former Chicago White Sox great Nellie Fox.

"Jerry can beat you in so many ways, just like Nellie did," said Pesky, an outstanding shortstop in the 1940's with the Red Sox.

Dick Williams, Remy's first manager, now manager of the San Diego Padres, called Remy one of the mentally toughest players he's ever managed.

"He's a gamer and a leader. He's not much of a talker. He's a doer," said Williams, usually a stingy man with compliments. "He's really a throwback to the old days with his hustle and guts."

Remy, born in Fall River, Mass., was an all star shortstop-second baseman at Somerset High School. He was selected by the Washington Senators as the 453rd player picked in the 1970 draft, but didn't sign. Instead, he attended Roger Williams College in Rhode Island for a semester before being drafted by the Angels in the 1971 January draft.

"When I was drafted by the Senators, I wasn't sure if I wanted to go to school or play pro ball right away. During school all I thought about was baseball so I made up my mind if I was drafted again, I would sign."

He hit .308 in rookie ball and two years later hit .335 for Quad Cities to capture the Midwest League batting title. Two years later he was the starting second baseman for the Angels.

"I never thought of myself as a sure bet to make the major leagues. Even

FAREWELL TO FENWAY

By CARL YASTRZEMSKI
with Ned Martin

There are some words in a song about the days being short when they reach September. When people ask me if it seems strange to think about the final months and days with the Red Sox and retiring, I have to tell them I haven't really thought about it. I'm still involved in what I can do today and tomorrow, and concentrating on hitting. So I haven't had time. Maybe it will dawn on me the last day of the season.

It's hard to think of being anything but a Red Sox player all these 23 years, especially so when you think back to the teenage years and how it all began. How, as a kid from a 40-student high school, I was considering offers from several major league teams.

In those days you had a choice, a clear choice. There was no draft. Anyway, my father and I had narrowed it to four teams. And the Yankees were not one of them, which might surprise some since I grew up on Long Island.

But the Yankees were eliminated in my senior year in high school. They offered me a $40,000 bonus, but my dad didn't care for the attitude of the scout who talked to us. And my father was a Yankee fan then, and wouldn't have minded my playing in New York. But he got mad at the guy, and when my father makes up his mind, that's it.

So it came down to four teams — the Philadelphia Phillies, Detroit Tigers, Cincinnati Reds and the Red Sox. I liked the ballparks I saw — Briggs (now Tiger) Stadium in Detroit, Crosley Field in Cincinnati and Connie Mack Stadium in Philadelphia — because they all had short right-field fences. I had been a pull hitter in high school.

So, instead, I end up with one that goes over 380 feet to the bullpen wall in right. Funny, when I first walked into Fenway Park in late November after I signed, I couldn't even see right field because of the snow.

What probably decided it for me was Father Joe Rapkowski, our parish priest on Long Island. He had been a close friend of Gil Hodges in Brooklyn, and Hodges had often told him that no owner in baseball treated his players more decently or ran his entire organization — all the way through the minors — with more class than Mr. Yawkey. So Father Joe kept telling us what a fine man Mr. Yawkey was, and what a great organization he ran. And he was right.

The personal computer designed for people who don't know how to use one.

If you're like Red Sox manager Ralph Houk, you don't have time to sit and struggle through a computer manual.

Now you don't have to. Because Digital, the world's second largest computer company has developed a much faster way to learn how to use a personal computer. It's called Computer-Based Instruction: the computer itself teaches you. After only an hour you'll feel right at home at the keyboard.

This kind of advance is just what you'd expect from the leader in office systems. We make word processors, departmental computers, and now personal computers that are powerful—yet very easy to use.

Ted Williams, Mary Ann (Carl's daughter) and Carl

I remember the meeting we had in Boston with Farm Director Johnny Murphy, and how cordial and easy-going everybody was. They put no pressure on me, just told me to stay around for a few days, or as long as I wanted. Oddly enough, Cincinnati offered me more money, more than we initially asked.

But it was Boston for me then, and if I had it to do over again, my decision would be the same. After the talks with the Red Sox people, my father said he thought I'd be happy here. And I have been.

Actually, it was very important to him and my mother that I choose a place where I'd be happy. I'd grown up in a strong family atmosphere. It was a different era — no, I'd better not say that, it really makes me sound old.

Long Island was a different place to grow up in. A farm area, but just over 100 miles to New York City. Fourteen kids in my graduating class. Both sides of my family lived within a mile of each other and there was always lots of stuff going on — clambakes, ballgames, fishing — and I loved it. We were all very close. That was important to me.

I'm asked a lot about certain memories on the field over the years. Well, I really can't think much about them. Oh, sure, the '67 season, the Triple Crown, things like that. But I feel it doesn't do you much good to think back. It's what you do today to help the ballclub that counts. I've always geared myself that way. What you did yesterday, good or bad, doesn't count. It's what you do today to try to win.

There were the people, of course. Mr. Yawkey was a close friend, a strong influence and an important part of my life. It was because of him that I've spent 25 years in the Red Sox organization. All the time I spent with him — sitting in the clubhouse, just talking baseball, knowing that he really cared about me and all the players — will stay with me the rest of my life.

He and Mrs. Yawkey were also very good to my family. They were wonderful to my mother when she was going through her fight against cancer, visiting her every day in the hospital. What my mother went through — yet always having time for me to help and be cheerful — put a lot of things in my life in perspective. And my dad, now, a quiet and positive man who keeps encouraging me even to this day.

And all the players. Hey, you spend seven months a year, six hours a day with 24 other guys, plus manager and coaches, and you've got a lot of closeness, a kind of comradeship. It can be a lot of fun.

Travelling has not always been a lot of fun. Flying was tough for me at first, but it got better as we went along. I made sure I learned the game of bridge early. It helped me pass the time on planes and kept me from asking Jake Liston and Sal Maglie what the weather was like. I just had to accept the fact that if I wanted to play, I had to fly. Twenty-three years is a long time in lots of hotel rooms and getting into towns at 4 in the morning to play that night. It's difficult.

But I've been lucky on the road. The home teams groundskeepers and management made the field available for extra hitting. Towns like Minneapolis and Seattle offer the enjoyment of fishing areas nearby for the occasional off-day. And the fans and the media have all been good to me. The ovations on our second and final swing around the league have been something.

Concentration has been an important factor in my game, especially hitting, because hitting was never easy for me. It has taken my total concentration each game, each time at bat. It starts at batting practice, then a half-hour before

*“Where Are

by Hugh McGovern

Red Sox Infielder 1971-77
Wore No. 2

THEN: Red Sox fans will remember Doug Griffin — “Dude” to his friends — as a sure-fisted second baseman and a tough clutch hitter, but also as an injury-plagued player.

The native Californian preceded Fred Lynn as the most valuable player on the El Monte High team before launching his professional career in the California Angels organization in 1965 at age 18.

Griffin's climb to the majors was interrupted by two years of military service in 1967 and 1968, but the slender athlete (6 feet, 165 pounds) was a member of a Navy team, based in Hawaii, that finished second in the National Baseball Congress tournament at Wichita, Kan.

A spectacular season for Hawaii of the Triple A Pacific Coast League was his springboard to the major leagues after his return to baseball from the service.

In 1970, Griffin hit .326, slugged nine homers, knocked in 60 runs and stole 35 bases for the Islanders. He finished that season with the Angels, then was traded to the Red Sox.

Griffin came to Boston along with pitcher Ken Tatum and outfielder Jarvis Tatum in exchange for Tony Conigliaro, Jerry Moses and Ray Jarvis.

His physical woes began his first season, a back problem. In 1972, his hand was broken by Gaylord Perry. The next year Billy Champion did the same. Worst of all was a beaming by fireballing Nolan Ryan in 1974.

Despite those mishaps, Griffin was a consistent and productive player.

1972 — the year Boston finished second in the American League East a mere half-game behind the Detroit Tigers — was his best. He won a Gold Glove for his spectacular second base play while batting .260 and knocking in 35 runs.

Griffin was also solid the next two seasons, hitting .265 and batting in 33 runs in 1973 and posting a .266 average with 33 RBI the following season.

Dude also contributed to the Red Sox 1975 American League championship, hitting .240 and knocking in 29 runs while appearing in 100 games.

Injuries finally took their toll and his skills declined, resulting in his release June 21, 1977.

WADE BOGGS... BATTING CHAMPION

by Gary Santaniello

He has become one of Boston's givens, like rush-hour snarls on the Expressway and delays on the "T." Ever since he joined the Red Sox for the beginning of the 1982 season — actually, ever since 1977, his second year in the Boston organization — Wade Boggs has hit. But saying Boggs hits is like saying Picasso sketched.

In August Boggs was leading the major leagues in hits, multiple-hit games, on-base percentage and in batting average. Such numbers are nothing new to Boggs. After hitting .263 at Elmira in his rookie year, he strung together .332, .311, .325, .306 and .335 seasons, the latter leading the International League in 1981, before he finally earned his promotion to the Red Sox.

He was third baseman Carney Lansford's backup for the first third of the 1982 season. When Lansford tore ligaments in his ankle running into Lance Parrish June 23, Boggs took over at third. He hit .361 the rest of the year and finished at .349 an A.L. rookie record for over 100 games. He may also have set a rookie record for answering the question, "Are you surprised at how well you're hitting?"

"I've answered it even more this year," Boggs said.

The questions wouldn't have been asked at all if the interviewers had been familiar with Boggs' background.

"I've always played ball. Street ball, cork ball — anything to do with swinging a bat. When I was nine, 10, 11, we'd play games like it was the World Series and we'd each be different hitters. I was Reggie Jackson, because he was left-handed and he hit so many homers, and homers came easy in whiffle ball.

"I think that's how I became such a good hitter. A cork ball is small — you get a wine cork, wrap it with white medical tape and put a penny on each end — and you use a broomstick for a bat. You really had to concentrate on hitting it. You could do so many things with a cork ball — make it rise, curve, sink — and if you swung and missed and the catcher caught it, you were out. We'd play every day for three hours."

Boggs led the country in homers (eight), RBI (41) and average (.522) as a junior at H.B. Plant High, in Tampa, Fla. "But in my senior year they started pitching around me." After 10 games he was 4 for 36, "and I knew I had to do something."

The morning after that 10th game Boggs' father checked Ted Williams'

A TRIBUTE TO TONY C

By George Sullivan

He lived the dream of every young Red Sox fan.

Less than two years out of high school, there he was at age 19—the hometown boy wearing a Red Sox uniform and striding to the plate at Fenway Park on Opening Day 1964. And on the first pitch served him, he arched a home run high over the screen above the left-field wall to launch the Red Sox to victory.

As Fenway rocked in response to the storybook homer, among those cheering were his mother and father, two brothers, a chorus of friends and neighbors, and a galaxy of celebrities including Stan Musial, Gene Tunney, Fredric March, Carol Channing, and Bobby and Ted Kennedy, along with the governor and mayor.

And the dream was just beginning. The cocky teenager would rip 23 more home runs that season (while batting .290) despite missing six weeks with an assortment of injuries including two broken bones. And the next season, despite a hairline wrist fracture that sidelined him 24 games, the six-foot-three, 185-pound righthanded slugger would hit 32 homers to lead the American League—at 20, the youngest ever to top the majors. By age 22 he would slam 100 home runs, the youngest big leaguer ever to do so.

Through it all he became a household name around the country. He made records off the field as well as on, gave concerts and Tony became a Red Sox regular as a crewcut teenager not long out of St. Mary's High School in Lynn.

Shortly before homering in his first Fenway at-bat during Opening Day 1964, teenager Tony posed with his family: parents Sal and Theresa, brothers Richie and Billy.

sang on national television. He entertained the troops in Vietnam. A handsome bachelor, gossip columnists linked his name with those of glamour queens.

Then, in less than four seasons, it all came crashing to a halt. While helping the Red Sox toward an Impossible Dream pennant, he nearly was killed by a pitch at Fenway one August night in 1967—carried off the field in intense pain and rushed to a hospital with a shattered cheekbone, dislocated jaw and a damaged retina which seriously impaired his vision.

"Death was constantly on my mind," he would recall. "I thought I was going to die."

He didn't die, but was told by doctors that he'd never play baseball again. He tried the next season anyway but failed. So the Fall after that he attempted a comeback as a pitcher, and during that time in the Florida Instructional League his sight improved and he made it back instead at his old position in right field.

He celebrated his return to the Red Sox with a dramatic home run in the 10th inning of the 1969 season opener at Baltimore and scored the winning run in the 12th inning. And among those congratulating him was a new roommate, his brother Billy, a fellow outfielder seeing his first game as a big leaguer.

The returning hero would hit 20 homers, drive in 82 runs and play in 141 games that Comeback of the Year season to win the Hutch Award, given annually to the major leaguer who "best exemplifies the fighting spirit and burning desire of the late Freddy Hutchinson," the former Detroit star pitcher and Tigers, Reds and Cardinals manager.

And he would go on to an even better season in 1970, reaching career highs of 36 homers and 116 RBIs.

But more bad luck would dog him. Eye specialists had regarded his comeback as a near miracle, but the miracle wasn't complete. He had recurring eye problems after being traded to California and he retired after only half a season with the Angels. He tried another comeback with the 1975 Red Sox, but after 21 games quit for keeps to become a sportscaster—after 162 home runs in 802 games in a Boston uniform.

And bad luck continued to haunt Tony Conigliaro in January 1982—this time a tragedy—as he fell critically ill while driving to Logan Airport.

The dream now had turned into a nightmare.

Yet Tony C's story will always be a classic—the ultimate Red Sox dream come true.

Conigliaro makes a spectacular tumbling catch in 1967.

Carl Yastrzemski (left) and Reggie Smith (center) teamed with Conigliaro in the Red Sox outfield that helped bring Boston its Impossible Dream pennant in 1967.

George Sullivan covered Tony C's exploits through the 1960s as a Boston sportswriter, and was on the scene the night Conigliaro was beaned in August 1967. He also was the only writer accompanying Tony to the Florida Instructional League in Fall 1968 when Conig attempted his comeback as a pitcher.

The author of four books including The Picture History of the Boston Red Sox, Sullivan joined the Red Sox in late 1981 as public relations director.

Tony made records off the field as well as on, gave concerts and sang on national television.

Break tradition.

Drink Ronrico Rum instead.

Face it, you already know what your usual gin and vodka have to offer.

Just try one drink mixed with Ronrico, and you'll realize what it is you've been missing all along.

Ronrico is superbly smooth and light. With a surprisingly distinctive flavor that's bound to win you over.

Isn't it about time you broke tradition with Ronrico Rum?

The Red Sox had a pair of hard-hitting rookie Tonys in 1964—outfielder-first baseman Tony H (for Horton) joining Tony C at the Red Sox' spring training base at Scottsdale, Ariz.

Conigliaro met another headliner named Willie Mays at the 1967 All-Star Game in Anaheim. Both had been baseball prodigies, winning outfield jobs as hard-hitting youngsters—Conig at age 19, Mays at 20.

Conig reached the 100-homer plateau by age 22, the youngest in major league history. In all, during six and a fraction Boston seasons, Tony slammed 162 homers—tied with Carlton Fisk for ninth place on the all-time Red Sox list.

The lower lefthand corner of the scoring block should be considered as home plate. Progress is counter-clockwise with progress to first base indicated in lower righthand corner, to second in upper righthand corner, to third in upper lefthand corner and to home in lower left. In example to left, batter reached first on an error by the second baseman, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a passed ball. It is convenient to encircle all runs as shown so that scoring plays may be seen at a glance.

FENWAY PARK GROUND RULES

Foul poles, screen poles and screen on top of left field fence are outside of playing field.
Ball going through scoreboard, either on the bound or fly: 2 Bases.

JIM RICE slugged 3 home runs and drove in 6 runs to give the Red Sox an 8-7, 9th-inning win in Toronto Aug. 29. RICE also hit 3 home runs in one game exactly six years earlier, Aug. 29, 1977, in Fenway Park vs. Oakland. The score was also 8-7, but the A's won the game. Ten players have hit 3 home runs in one game for the Red Sox but only Ted Williams, three times, and RICE, twice, have done it more than once. Entering September RICE had hit 2 or more home runs in one game 31 times, second to Ted Williams in Red Sox history and fourth among active players.

More than 83,000 ballots were cast last summer as Red Sox fans selected their all-time Red Sox "Dream Team."

Hall of Famer Ted Williams was a landslide selection as the club's greatest player and was also named to the all-time outfield along with current stars Carl Yastrzemski and Dwight Evans.

The Red Sox and the Gillette Co. co-sponsored the election after a panel of sports reporters and broadcasters put together the list of players and managers that appeared on the ballot.

In January the all-time team was honored at the Boston Baseball Writers Dinner with seven of the living members in attendance.

Ted Williams, voted The Greatest All-Time Red Sox player, was on hand for the formal announcement of the "Dream Team" at Fenway Park in January.

BOSTON RED SOX AFFIRMATIVE ACTION POLICY

The Red Sox will not discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because of race, religion, color, sex, age, national origin or ancestry. The Red Sox will take affirmative action to insure that such individuals are treated during their employment without regard to race, religion, color, sex, age, national origin or ancestry. Such action shall include but not be limited to the following: hiring, upgrading, demotion, transfer, recruitment, layoff, rates of pay, all other forms of compensation, and selection for training.

Personnel procedures and practices with regard to training, promotion, transfer, compensation, demotion, layoff or termination are to be administered with due regard to job performance, experience and qualifications, but without discrimination because of race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin or ancestry.

It is the policy of the Red Sox that in the process of recruitment for and appointment to the work force qualified minority group candidates will be encouraged to apply.

The Red Sox will not discriminate against any rehabilitated employee or applicant because of previous psychiatric treatment and/or confinement in a mental health facility. Employment will not be denied for such medical history unless there is a bona fide occupational qualification which precludes employment. Additionally, the Red Sox will not discriminate against any rehabilitated employee or applicant for employment because of physical handicap unless there is a bona fide occupational qualification which precludes employment.

The Red Sox will not discriminate against qualified minority-owned vendors and suppliers, including suppliers of both professional and non-professional services. The Red Sox will request that its vendors and suppliers submit assurance of their commitments to the goal of equal employment opportunity. The Red Sox will not discriminate in the leasing of commercial space.

Any Red Sox employee judged to be in willful and deliberate non-compliance with this equal employment opportunity policy will be subject to disciplinary action.

YOU DON'T RUN MILLION-DOLLAR EXPERIMENTS WITH A CHEAPLY MADE OIL FILTER.

Motorcraft

EXCEEDS THE NEED

What existing oil filter could be selected for automobiles of such valuable technological stature?

Incredibly, many million-dollar experiments are guarded by a Motorcraft FL-1A filter — right off the shelf. Engineered to outperform all leading filters, the FL-1A's unique six-slot base accommodates oil flow rushes to nine gallons per minute. And an exclusive filter design incorporating a pleated filter element is blended with tough man-made fiber. A superior material not found in cheaply made oil filters. The result? Motorcraft FL-1A lasts longer and traps more abrasives than any other leading filter. So which would appear the better choice to protect your car? The Motorcraft filter proven in million-dollar experiments? Or one proven to trap less dirt for a shorter period of time? Motorcraft. Quality parts for all makes of cars. Get it together — buckle up.

It's a new network and a new team on the Red Sox radio network this year. The Campbell Sports Network is bringing the action during the entire 1983 season to fans all over New England. WPLM in Plymouth is the flagship station and WHDH in Boston is the major metropolitan outlet.

Once again genial Ken Coleman is behind the mike, but he has a new partner in Joe Castiglione. Coleman, also the executive director of the Jimmy Fund, has done Red Sox games on radio and TV for 13 years, and has over 30 years of broadcasting experience.

Ken spent 10 years with the Cleveland Indians and 14 with the Cleveland Browns of the NFL. He also did Cincinnati Reds TV, Harvard and Ohio State football and seven NFL championship games. Ken won 12 AFTRA awards.

Castiglione, a native of Hamden, Conn., did play-by-play of Cleveland Indians games on cable TV last year after a similar position for the Milwaukee Brewers in 1981. He got his major league start by doing the Indians games on commercial TV in 1979 before he became the club's backup announcer on the radio network in 1980.

The Colgate U. graduate did college broadcasting at Colgate, Syracuse U. and Youngstown State U. Last year his cable TV partner in Cleveland was Hall of Fame pitcher Bob Feller.

RED SOX TV

Ned Martin

Bob Montgomery

The popular combination of veteran Ned Martin and former catcher Bob Montgomery is together for the second year on the TV 38 (WSBK) Red Sox Network.

They will be announcing telecasts of approximately 100 games during TV 38's ninth straight year with the Red Sox. Five other stations around New England comprise the network.

Martin has been a New England fixture with Red Sox fans for 23 years, on both radio and TV. The Duke University grad and Marine Corps veteran has been with TV 38 since 1979. After starting his career working minor league games, Ned joined Curt Gowdy on the Red Sox network in 1961.

He has broadcast the American League Championship Series games on the CBS Radio network in 1976-78 and in the fall of 1979 went to Japan to telecast games between the Major League All Stars and Japanese teams.

Monty hit the only home run in last year's Old Timers Game at Fenway Park. He was also a part of the telecast team for the first time. In 1962 Bob signed with the Red Sox and was a catcher in the organization until he retired in the spring of 1980.

He came to the majors for good in 1971 and was a valuable reserve. The Boston Baseball Writers voted him their "Unsung Hero Award" in 1973 and he was on the 1975 pennant-winning club. Monty did a radio sports talk show in 1980-81 as well as some announcing and color commentary of Red Sox games on radio.

★ WADE BOGGS ★

"The Science of Hitting" out of the library, gave it to his son and told him "by next Tuesday's game, I want you to read this whole book — and I don't mean thumbing through it."

Boggs began reading the book that night instead of going out, read it Sunday and brought it to school to read Monday. "What the book reminded me of was patience and discipline, particularly the chart in the front on the sweet zone. It showed how you hit .231 on pitches low and away, .186 on pitches low and in and .350 to .370 on the good pitches, those waist-high or thigh-high."

Boggs went 26 for 33 in his last 11 games, finishing at .485 and earning

All-Conference, All-State and All-America honors. He signed a letter-of-intent to play for Bobby Richardson at South Carolina, but when the Red Sox chose him in the seventh round of the 1976 June draft, he and his father hammered out a deal and Boggs went off to Elmira.

The Red Sox wanted Boggs "to hit home runs and pull the ball, but at 17 I wasn't physically strong enough to do that, facing 22 and 23-year-old kids out of college. I just wanted to be a good hitter. I felt I'd be a better hitter hitting line drives, finding the gaps."

After his first year at Elmira, Boggs joined the .300 Club, but after hitting .306 for Pawtucket in 1980 (losing the batting title on the final day to Toledo's Dave Engle), he wasn't placed on Boston's major-league roster. Thus, every team had the opportunity to draft Boggs for $25,000 but none did. Then during spring training in 1981 he asked Boston farm director Ed Kenney exactly what he had to do to make the major leagues. And he said they needed more extra-base production. So my goal for '81 was to get an extra-base hit every third hit."

He finished with 167 hits, 49 for extra bases. That included five homers, one more than he had in the previous five minor-league seasons combined.

The next year he was in Boston, leading the team in hitting with men in scoring position (.421), with men on base (.401) and compiling a 14-game hitting streak, which tied Dwight Evans for the club high. This year his numbers are no less impressive, and the accolades are no less effusive.

"I don't think he has a hole at the plate," states White Sox Manager Tony LaRussa. "There's no set way to pitch him. You have to trick him."

"He looks like he hits the ball to all fields, and those type of guys are difficult to defense," says Oakland hitting instructor Billy Williams. "He looks like a future batting champion to me."

Red Sox Cooperate with Fenway Neighbors

The Red Sox reaffirm their commitment to cooperating with their neighbors in working out various community concerns. We encourage all of our fans to cooperate also by not littering, vandalizing or in any way disregarding the rights of the neighbors who surround Fenway Park. The Red Sox also urge all fans to use the parking lots in the vicinity of the stadium and to use private buses or public transportation whenever possible.

Please refer to the transportation map on Page 50 for further information on easy access to the ball park. Thank you.

game-time I'm talking to myself, gearing myself up. I talk to myself in the on-deck circle ("Keep your head on the ball, watch the ball come out of the pitcher's hand, go into the ball soft, don't try to overswing . . .") and keep talking to myself between pitches. That concentration helped me to what I feel was my finest hour — the last six weeks of the 1967 season.

And it carries right on to defense. I'm proud of the work I did in the outfield, the Gold Gloves, the clutch plays. It's hard to pinpoint any fielding plays that stand out. They all come together. But I think that in that three-game playoff with Oakland in 1975 I played as well as anyone can play defensively. We won those games on defense, you know.

All in all, it's been great to play with the Red Sox, especially since 1967, because the game is a lot more fun to play when you're contending, which we were almost every year starting with that pennant. If I'd been with a club that never was in the race, I don't believe my career would have come this far.

I've enjoyed playing in New England for 23 years. Every time I've put on a uniform, I did the best I possibly could to win that game. I have been proud to represent the fans because they were good to me.

I hope I represented them with class, and as a winner.

“Where Are They Now?”

Griffin is remembered as a competent performer, a decided asset for the Red Sox in the first half of the 1970s.

NOW: Griffin, a skilled carpenter himself, is in charge of construction for Red Sox general partner Buddy LeRoux' business interests in Florida. He lives in Winter Haven, the Red Sox spring training camp.

QUOTES: Was being traded to Boston a disappointment? After all, you had grown up in Southern California and were also in the Angels' organization.

“It would have been nice to stay at home, but I wanted to play in the majors and the Red Sox at that time needed a second baseman.

“I appreciated the opportunity to play regularly so I didn't mind too much coming to Boston. In fact, I was glad to come.”

What are your memories of your days with the Red Sox?

“I enjoyed them. I was with a competitive team. We won the American League championship in 1975 . . . a great thrill. But there were also frustrations, like losing the divisional championship in 1972 by only a half-game and then there was that slump near the end of the 1974 season that cost us the title.”

(The 1974 Red Sox had a seven-game lead in late August, but the skid Griffin mentioned found them winding up third in the A.L. East).

No doubt, you think of the injuries that haunted your career and probably led to your premature retirement from the game?

“You can't dwell on the past and what might have been. Injuries are part of the game. That's baseball. You try to think of the good times and the friendships you made while you were playing.”

One of your closest friends during your playing days was Carl Yastrzemski.

“Yaz is amazing. Imagine still playing at his age (44 on Aug. 22).

“I treasure the memories of our association, like fishing together on an off-day during the season.

“Those are the things you like to recall when you think about your baseball career.”

It's strange to be talking to a baseball player at 7 a.m. Most of the time they're sound asleep, especially after a night game.

“Your lifestyle changes after you leave the game. I've so much to do now that I have to be up early in the morning to get them done.”

Life without baseball can be fun?

“Of course. There is satisfaction in what I'm doing now. There are the memories, the American League championship ring and the Gold Glove, but you can't live on them. You have to find happiness in other things and I'm doing that, living here in Florida and keeping busy.”

when I got to the majors I didn't know how long I'd stay. I got to play right away and I did the job, I guess."

Remy hit .258, .263 and .252 in his three years with the Angels. He averaged 148 games a season and stole 110 bases.

"I really thought I'd spend my career with the Angels. I had come up in their organization, I was young and my wife and I were planting roots in California." But Remy was dealt to the Red Sox December 8, 1977 for pitcher Dan Aase.

"It was a bittersweet time for me because I liked playing for the Angels and hated to leave, but on the other hand I was coming home and going to one of the best teams in baseball."

In 1978, Remy came back from a wrist injury and mounted a late September charge at the New York Yankees to force the historic playoff game for the American League Eastern Division title. He finished with a .278 average overall, including a .354 mark the final 16 games.

He also stole 30 bases, only the second player — the other was Tommy Harper — to steal 30 bases in the last 48 years for the Red Sox.

In 1979, Remy injured his left knee sliding into home plate at Yankee Stadium and the injury haunted him until he underwent cartilage surgery in August of 1980.

"The operation was the turning point in my career. I knew then how quickly a career could end. Even though the operation and recovery was a worrisome time — my career was on the line — it was fun to watch the knee improve.

"During that whole time period I realized that someday I would wake up and realize I was too old to play. So I decided to make every game, every play count because some game will be my last and some play will be my last."

After his sneak preview of life without baseball, Remy hit .307 (.338 with men in scoring position) in the strike-shortened 1981 season, and last year encored with his best all-around season.

Someday, when his playing days are over, Remy would like to coach.

"I think I have something to offer younger players. And, baseball is a big part of my life. It's been my occupation since I was 18 and I wouldn't mind making it my occupation for the rest of my life."

Hoffman believes Remy would make a good coach, "because he pays attention to detail and knows how to communicate it."

Houk is pleased with the steadying influence Remy has exerted over the Red Sox young infield.

"He takes charge out there and we need someone like that because we have such a young infield. He's like another coach on the field."

Coaching may be in the future, but for now, Jerry Remy is playing the role as the Boston Red Sox "little big man."

There are plenty of sporty cars that will turn heads today. But there aren't many that will turn corners like a Toyota Celica GT. Because Celica has more than just an eye-catching exterior. It has the right stuff underneath, too.

The 1983 Celica GT Liftback has the most powerful engine ever offered in a Celica, a 2.4 liter power plant with a new electronic fuel injection system. From now on, heads better turn quickly, or they won't see Celica at all.

Celicas also come standard with a close ratio 5-speed overdrive transmission. And a 4-speed automatic overdrive is available.

There's even a new Celica model for 1983 — the Celica GT-S (pictured below). It introduces racing-type independent rear suspension to the Celica line. Celica GT-S also comes standard with the biggest tires in the class — extra-wide 225/60 HR 14 steel-belted radials. And they're mounted on gleaming 14" x 7" aluminum alloy wheels. So Celica turns corners with a precision the rest of the Other Celica GT-S features include fender flares, for a racy look. And inside, multi-adjustable sports seats that really hug you as you turn those corners.

"He's the best young hitter I've ever seen at keeping his head on the ball," teammate Carl Yastrzemski says.

The only part of his hitting prowess Boggs has yet to fully display is his power. During his first visits to American League cities last year, Boggs would pick a spot in batting practice — such as the transformer atop the right-field roof in Detroit, the center-field waterfalls in Kansas City — and invariably hit the ball there.

After hitting five homers last year, his first this year didn't come until July 14, yet he sees his home run totals increasing each year. "My goal is to be like my idol, George Brett. To be the all-around hitter he is. His first few years in the league he didn't hit a lot of homers, but now he's hitting the ball hard to all fields and he has hit over 20 homers in four of the past six years.

"I have to get the right pitches to hit homers. I have to work the count in my favor and get pitches I can hit homers on. A man has got to know his limitations."

Even if there are very few of them.

DID YOU KNOW??

DID YOU KNOW?

Sacrifice hits were first recorded in 1889. They were credited to batters for advancing runners on any out and at bats were charged. In 1894 the rule was changed so that only bunts were counted as sacrifices with no at bats charged. A sacrifice fly was tabulated with no time at bat for scoring a runner with a fly ball out from 1908 to 1930, 1939 and 1954 to the present. In addition, from 1926 to 1930, a sacrifice fly was counted for advancing any runner with a fly ball out.

DID YOU KNOW?

DWIGHT EVANS led the RED SOX with 19 HR in Fenway Park in 1982. The Fenway Park record is 35 by JIMMIE FOXX in 1938. FRED LYNN holds the record for left handed batters, 28 in 1979. LYNN and JIM RICE (1978) are tied for the 2nd best total. (RICE also hit 27 in Fenway in 1979.) RICE led the club with 15 HR on the road in 1982. The team road record is 26 by TED WILLIAMS in 1957. Since 1957 the best road total is 19 by CARL YASTRZEMSKI in 1969.

DID YOU KNOW?

Five pitchers have batted a total of six times for the RED SOX since the DH rule went into effect in 1973. LUIS TIANI flied out 7/12/75 vs. Texas, JIM WILLOUGHBY flied out 5/21/76 in N.Y., DICK POLE grounded out 6/17/76 in Oakland, TIANI struck out 7/5/76 vs. Chicago, JOEL FINCH flied out 7/25/79 vs. Oakland and DICK DRAGO grounded out 7/29/80 in K.C. The last regular season hit by a RED SOX pitcher came Oct. 3, 1972 in Detroit, a single in the 7th inning by TIANI off Woody Fryman. MARTY PATTIN hit the last HR by a Sox pitcher, 9/26/72 in Fenway, off Bill Parsons of Milw. BILL LEE hit the last road HR, 9/11/72 in Clev. off Ray Lamb.

DID YOU KNOW?

The Red Sox drew 1,752,205 on the road in 1982 to rank 4th in the A.L. It was the 16th straight year they topped the one million mark in road attendance. They averaged 22,756, 4th, for 77 road dates. Their road record is 2,183,113 in 1978.

DID YOU KNOW?

Only three Red Sox pitchers ever led the American League in strikeouts. The last was JIM LONBORG in 1967 with 246. The others were CY YOUNG, 158 in 1901 and TEX HUGHSON, 113 in 1942 (tied with Bobo Newsom of Washington).

DID YOU KNOW?

The RED SOX tied the Major League record by making three triple plays in 1979. They were the first SOX triple plays since 5/25/72 vs. the Orioles in Fenway Park. The SOX have not made one since 1979. The 1979 triple plays were:

Date	Opponent	Batter	Inn.	How
5/10	Angels	Rudi	7	Pop in short RF to Remy (2B), to Burleson (SS) to Scott (1B).
7/23	Angels	Aikens	8	Liner to Burleson (SS), tagged 2B, threw to Yaz (1B).
7/28	at Texas	Oliver	1	1st and 3rd, pop in short RF to Brohamer (2B), to Watson (1B) to Hobson (3B).

The last one against the RED SOX was 9/4/65 in N.Y. BOB TILLMAN grounded to Clete Boyer at 3B, who started a 5-4-3 DP with Bobby Richardson and Joe Pepitone. Pepitone then threw back to Boyer to get TONY CONIGLIARO at third.

DID YOU KNOW?

The last player to steal home for the Red Sox was TOMMY HARPER May 28, 1973 in K.C. with Dick Drago the pitcher... There have been several steals of home since on double steals with the last coming Aug. 24, 1980, GARY ALLENSON in Sea... The last opponent to steal home vs. the Red Sox was ROY WHITE of N.Y. Aug. 1, 1972 at Fenway with Sonny Siebert the pitcher... The last opp. double steal of home was Aug. 20, 1982 in Oak., Jeff Burroughs scoring.

The Gillette Atra® razor has the advantage of a pivoting head. So it shaves better than twin blade razors that don't pivot. The pivoting head keeps both blades on your beard longer, so you get a closer, more comfortable shave. And when you get a closer, more comfortable shave, you can get a lot more advantages.
